New School Position Funding Arouses Ire Of School Board

By Susan Rand

The school budget process was blasted Tuesday night as several School Committee members criticized a funding proposal for new secondary school administrators.

Assistant Superintendent Leslie Loomis's plan for three new positions, each working less than half-time, would cost the system $27,500 that he told the committee could be raised by cutting the budgets of five other areas.

But, committee members Susan T. Poore and Richard E. Neal wouldn't comment on the merits of the administrative proposals, instead focusing on the proposed budget cuts to fund the plan. Members Michael R. Giammusso and David Birnbach both said they supported Loomis's plan but Birnbach said he was uneasy about a proposed reduction in the research and development budget. Committee Chairman Donald W. Robb was absent from the meeting.

"I'm very uncomfortable with this. It simply destroys the credibility of the budget process," Neal told Loomis. "We spent four months getting the budget, now, a month later, we find that we can save $27,500. As we went through the budget there were many places where we could have spent $27,500."

The administrative plan was also discussed at the committee's last meeting on April 30, when it received limited support from the board. No action on the plan was taken this week.

Loomis's proposal would add two administrative assistants to the high school staff, each working four-tenths time. They would handle discipline of students, freeing the two assistant principals of that task. One assistant principal would then take over as director of student programs, working primarily to oversee school organizations, an area Loomis said is in need of a "shot in the arm."

Neal asked Loomis twice if the student activities position was his highest priority for the high school. Loomis said that along with stronger academic leadership and the student-teacher ratio in the classrooms, this was a "critical area."

The second part of the plan would institute a one-year pilot program at Doherty Junior High for troubled students. This idea was enthusiastically received by the committee, who later told Loomis they wanted the plan, called the Doherty Alternative Program, separated from the high school proposal.

The $27,500 to fund the three positions would come from five areas within the school budget, explained Francis L. Paul, the school's business manager. Paul went on to say the budget changes do not imply a reduction in services, except in the research and development fund where the original budget of $53,219 was cut by $9,000 to $44,219.

Loomis said he considered the secondary portion of R&D money better spent on the immediate need for a student activities structure at the high school, instead of possible research and development projects at that level.

Paul outlined the other budget reductions, in legal services, cut $2,000 from the $19,000 budgeted to $17,000; track changes cut from $30,000 to $22,500; inservice training which would be cut almost in half from $8,750 to $4,750 and professional improvement which would shrink from $25,000 to $20,000.

Birnbach said he was worried about the 45 percent cut in inservice funds.

And Poore, who said she was critical of the research and development funding when it was proposed during budget deliberations, further questioned its credibility as it was reduced by $9,000.

She said she felt there were a "number of veils" standing between her and the budget, adding that she was "not sure how many veils we push aside to come to a clear understanding of" the budget. Poore also asked if the same financial savings also exists in other areas of the budget.

Criticism of the proposal also came from the teacher's union head as Steve Jankauskas applauded Neal's comments, saying that he, too, was concerned about funding the proposals "on the backs of training of staff."

The Andover Education Association president also suggested that administrators give up more research and development money instead of cutting inservice training funds. Jankauskas suggested the change because of this year's change in the initiation of research and development projects, coming no longer from the bottom of the organization but from administrators who, he said, "decided how teachers will be plugged in."

The Doherty Alternative Program, which Loomis said would serve 12 to 15 students, will be discussed in detail at the next meeting, on Tuesday, May 21, at 7:30 p.m.

That proposal would fund a teacher who would meet daily with disruptive students. Youngsters now falling into this category are not receiving the help they need in their regular classes, said Jack Hughes, Doherty Acting Principal.

The youngsters are frequently tardy, or absent, from school, their grades are low, as is their self-esteem and some have family problems.

"We will try to give them a sense of identity," said Hughes. "A sense of community in the school. They need a lot of stroking to improve their self-esteem."

To Review Assessment Process

The town's assessment process will be discussed at Monday's Board of Selectmen meeting as two Andover women who have called for an investigation of the Board of Assessor's method of assessment have their day in court.

Debby Moggio and Joan Prum have invited the commissioner of the state's Department of Revenue to the meeting. In a letter to the Revenue Department the two women sent a petition, with about 60 names, citing "inequities in the assessments in town."

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m., in the selectmen's second floor meeting room, Town Hall, Bartlet Street.

Zoning Board Sets Dates For Hearings

Opposition Leader Speaker

The Boston Globe calls him "Reagan's new ally." Nicaraguan opposition leader, Arturo Cruz, will speak in Kemper Auditorium at Phillips Academy on Friday, May 10, at 8 p.m. as a follow-up to the Headmaster's Symposium of last winter centering on the issue of U.S. relations with Latin America. A reception and discussion will follow the talk in the adjacent Underwood Room. The public is invited at no charge.

Cruz is seen by the Reagan administration as the potential key to convincing Congress of the validity of new appropriations totalling $14 million in aid to the contras, the anti-Sandinista rebels in Nicaragua. A 61-year-old Georgetown-educated banker, Cruz quit as Nicaragua's Ambassador to the United States in 1981, protesting the South American's government's policies. Since then, he has held his new views stringently, returning to Managua to run for president in the November election, but withdrawing his name before balloting began. This change in a former enemy of the contras could make him a key player during the next few weeks as Congress watches the events in Nicaragua unfold.

Dartmouth Scholarship

Andover banker John P. Dilorio has been honored by his friends through the establishment of a scholarship fund in his name at Dartmouth College.

The scholarship is earmarked for financially deserving students from the Merrimack Valley area, with a preference for students who play basketball or rugby. Dilorio captained the 1952 Winchester High School basketball team which won that year's Class B state championship.

The scholarship fund has been established at Dartmouth because of Dilorio's close ties to the college. He was helped through the college by a scholarship and has sent two of his four children there.

According to Jack Heneghan, Norwell businessman, who initiated and continues to coordinate fundraising for the scholarship, the fund is expected to exceed $100,000 this year. Heneghan is a long-time friend and business associate of Dilorio.

Dilorio began his banking career in Massachusetts in 1957, the year after he graduated from Dartmouth. He is the founder of the Burlington Bank and Trust Company, which was sold to the Bank of Boston in 1972. Dilorio is a senior vice president at the Bank of Boston, presently on medical disability.

The first scholarship is expected to be awarded this fall. Those interested in contributing can contact Jack Heneghan, 167 Washington St., Norwell, Mass. 02061.

Pre-Prom Program Tuesday

The Andover High School's Students Against Drunk Driving will feature its annual pre-prom program Tuesday, May 14, at 10:45 a.m. in the Collins Center.

This year's theme will be "If We Can Dream It, We Can Make It Happen." The program hopes to reinforce the negative consequence of mixing drinking and driving. James Powers will describe how alcohol in general and the combination of alcohol and driving have had drastic impacts on his life. He was recently driving under the influence of alcohol when he was involved in a crash that took the life of one of his sons.

All parents are welcome to attend.

An Andover AMC Founder Finds Reality Of Heidi's World

By Sue Aucella Deacon

When she was a child, Marta Hornidge will tell you, her favorite book was Heidi. It was not hard for her to imagine the little mountain girl's storybook world: She grew up on the northern peninsula of Michigan, and "next door were the hills and the streams and the skiing."

She is 65 now, a teacher of more than 37 years, and her students call her "the mountain lady."

The mountains — mountains all over the world — have always been part of her life, and as one of the founders of the Appalachian Mountain Club's Andover chapter, she has helped make the mountains more than distant scenery to hundreds of people.

"If I can do it, anyone who's interested can do it," Mrs. Hornidge says of hiking. "Everyone can do it to some extent. It's a really wonderful kind of addition to anyone's life."

She has lived in the same house on Ballardvale Road with her husband, Richard Hornidge, for more than 33 years. The Hornidges raised two children in Andover: Richard, Jr., who lives in Andover; and Patricia, who lives in Marshfield.

Mrs. Hornidge taught at Pike School in Andover for 25 years, mainly at the junior high level. More recently, she was a learning disabilities tutor at the Belmont Day School for 11 years, until she retired last June; she still returns to the school occasionally as a substitute teacher.

"I love teaching," she says. "I truly miss it. I haven't gotten into retirement."

Marta did not retire to find rest and solitude: She retired to make time for a month-long trek through the Himalayas last fall. "I knew it would be a tremendous experience — I retired to do it. That was a tremendous decision."

She was not disappointed. Already she looks forward to returning to those mountains one day, and climbing to a higher altitude. "I want to go back and do it, and I think I will."

Nor has she been merely reflecting on that trip for the past few months. The Hornidges have just returned from a trip down the Nile in Egypt; that trip ended in a visit to Jerusalem.

She travels sometimes with her husband and sometimes with large groups of serious hikers ("I think I've got Dick into this travel thing now, too, but I still like to take my mountain junkets"), to places like Switzerland and Austria and Norway, Ireland and Greece and Peru.

Last spring, the couple sailed through the Galapagos Islands in the Pacific. During the spring of 1983, Marta hiked through the Swiss Alps for three weeks.

Wherever she travels, she hikes. "You see much more intimately," she explains, "the countryside and the people. I could never go any other way now."

Dressed in a sweater and khakis, she is a vigorous woman, slender and charged with energy. Her manner is crisp and straightforward, but she laughs easily and often.

Marta Hornidge

In the Swiss Alps

She has been a hiker and a lover of the outdoors all her life, Mrs. Hornidge says: Inspired by her childhood environment, she came by that affection "very, very naturally. I love the feeling of the outdoors, the freshness."

Before coming to Andover she lived on the West Coast, where she hiked and skied through California's Sierra Nevada, "which are just a whole other thing, twice as high as the mountains are here. I've hiked quite a lot in Colorado, too — I've climbed fourteen-thousand foot peaks there."

Her first hiking trips were perhaps her "most adventurous." When her daughter was in high school, the two of them spent summers traveling "on our own, not with a group or with a leader. We just followed maps." On one of those trips, they hiked around Mont Blanc in the French and Italian Alps; on another, they hiked through the Dolomites in northern Italy.

Later the hiker joined groups she could travel with, like the Sierra Club on the West Coast — and, here in the East, the Appalachian Mountain Club (AMC). She was, in fact — along with the well-known Louise VanEveren — one of the organizers of the AMC's Andover chapter, and she is a former chairman of the local group.

"It's been growing like mad," Marta says, clearly pleased. "We've gone from seven members to five-hundred or so in the past eight years. Now it's on a good, firm footing, with more people taking leadership roles, and I'm less involved."

The AMC has attracted new members with activities every Sunday (offered just once a month in the past), such as walks or bicycle rides or cross-country ski trips, as well as trips all over New England, the United States, and the world.

"Locally, people have come out of the woodwork to join these Sunday walks. We had one-hundred and fifty people show up one Sunday recently — that shows what interest there is."

Mrs. Hornidge hopes that kind of interest will help townspeople appreciate and respect the open space and "precious trails" that Andover has to offer. (She points out that the AMC is noted throughout the world for its work in conservation and trail maintenance.)

As a well-experienced hiker who strides around town with her husband (and their dog, Taffy) every afternoon, Mrs. Hornidge needs no introduction to Andover's woods and trails. But she still enjoys the AMC's trips through the White Mountains of New Hampshire, and looks forward to joining a two-day hike around Mount Washington next month.

"That is fun to do with a group. And I do love the Mount Washington area — that's really where I got started with serious walking," she explains. "I've hiked all the forty-seven peaks that are over four-thousand feet high in New Hampshire, and I've almost finished the one-hundred highest in New England. I know them all."

But her hiking boots have carried her far from New England. It's difficult to decide which of her trips has been the most memorable: "They're all so different, it's apt to be my most recent one."

She may one day, however, look back on her Himalayan trip as one that was truly special. "It was so unusual, and the people — I went primarily to meet the Nepalese people, and they were not disappointing."

"They are extremely friendly and generous, very loving. The Sherpa guides are just beyond belief. And it's not going to last — perhaps five more years, and then it will be over."

American and European tourists are "pouring into" the mountains in such numbers that, she predicts, the Nepalese will soon learn to become beggars — like the people of the Galapagos. "There they hang all over you. It's very uncomfortable. That's not true in the Himalayas — not yet."

Her "three-pronged" trip began with more than a week of hiking through the mountains at an altitude of 9,000 feet ("I didn't do the high mountains"). Every morning a Sherpa guide woke her at 5:30, bringing a cup of hot tea to her tent, and she watched the sun rise over Annapurna.

Each day she and her companions hiked for eight to ten hours, carrying just a backpack while Sherpas shouldered the rest of her gear, "and we enjoyed the trails, the villages, the children. Then we tented at night."

Marta was especially enchanted by the children of the villages — so much so that when she arrived in Kathmandu at the end of the trip, she visited the headquarters of the Save the Children organization and arranged to sponsor a Nepalese child.

She is now helping to support Kamala Devi, a 12-year-old girl "who could be one of the children I met in a village where I was hiking. Save the Children is a marvelous program, it does a super job, and I'm thrilled to be a part of it."

Although she didn't hike around Mount Everest, the very sight of the world's highest mountain was a highlight of her Himalayan trip.

"I took an airplane ride by Mount Everest, and it was one of the most thrilling things — a vast, vast expanse of white, with jagged peaks." The mountain appeared "so distinct" that Mrs. Hornidge is convinced she saw, from the plane, the giant footprints of the yeti — the abominable snowman of legend.

The second part of the trip was spent rafting down the Trisuli River for three days, until the group arrived in the Roy-

Nursery Accepting Registrants

West Parish Nursery School is accepting registrations for the 1985-86 school year. Located on Reservation Road, West Parish is a non-profit, non-denominational organization which is administered by parents and is open to children who are four by September 1. The school meets Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. throughout the academic year. West Parish offers a program of flexible, changing curriculum which incorporates art, music, outdoor play and field trips. The staff strives to stimulate without overwhelming, striking the perfect balance between fun and education which prepares the children for a smooth transition into the kindergarten year.

The current class of children at West Parish experienced and enjoyed many field trips. In addition to favorite local spots such as the Andover library and the police/fire department complex, the children visited Lawrence General Hospital, Kealey Farms, Apple Acres in Windham, N.H., the Acton Children's Discovery Museum and Peterson Sugar House in Londonderry, N.H. All are awaiting the trip to the beach where the children will learn about the sea and its creatures.

Interested parents of four or five year olds seeking additional information concerning the school or registration should contact Mrs. Donna Franz, 206 River Road.

Bikes Galore At Auction

Andover's Giant Recycling Sale, Auction and Aluminum Drive on Saturday, May 11, will feature the auction of several dozen bikes in addition to the hundreds of sale items available. Bikes will be auctioned by Andover contractor Doug Mifflin at 10 a.m. at Draper Hall, through the Abbot gate on School Street. Viewing starts at 9 a.m., the starting time for the sale.

Furniture, lamps, small appliances, fabrics, housewares, sporting and exercise equipment, toys, yard implements, a swimming pool and almost anything one could imagine will be sold at rock-bottom prices at Draper Hall from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Garden clubs will offer plants for sale and refreshments will be available.

Windows, storms and screens of all shapes and sizes, and other necessities for home repair are available. Some of these materials would be ideal for sun space construction.

The recycling sale has been an annual event in Andover for more than 12 years. Income from it helps to keep the town's curbside pickup of paper in operation. It is a highly useful and visible form of recycling; perfectly serviceable items that might be put into the trash collection to cost the town tipping fees are being reused and enjoyed instead of being destroyed.

Donations for the sale are still being received at Draper Hall from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. every evening this week and all day Friday, May 10. Pickups of large items may still be arranged by calling Mrs. R. Milton Cole, Mrs. Thomas Swift, Mrs. Dan Dennett, Mrs. Joseph Dana or Mrs. Paul Hollenbeck. Donations are tax-deductible.

The Pentagon building in Arlington, Virginia, has 68,000 miles of phone lines.

Ms. Kiley Appointed Counselor

Sandra Kiley of Andover has been appointed exchange student counselor by the American Institute for Foreign Study (AIFS) Scholarship Foundation of Greenwich, Conn. She is seeking host families for English-speaking students who wish to learn more about America. The AIF Scholarship Foundation sponsors educational travel experiences for young people from all parts of the world to promote worldwide understanding through cross-cultural exchange.

"Many families here could provide an ideal home for a visiting student," said Kiley. In addition to enjoying the companionship of a student from another country and learning about that student's culture and customs, host families are awarded up to $800 in scholarship funds for family members to use for overseas study. A federal income tax deduction may also be allowable by the Internal Revenue Service.

"We can match a student's interests to yours and you can screen applications to choose the youngster you like best. Through the foundation, for example, in past years sports-minded families have chosen Spanish soccer players and German skiers. A family with five sons gave a warm welcome to an only child from Holland who longed for brothers and a suburban couple, committed to the local symphony, chose a Japanese student violinist," Kiley added.

For more information, contact Kiley or write the AIF Scholarship Foundation, 100 Greenwich Avenue, Greenwich, Conn. 06830.

Readying Skills For Elder Olympics

Local elders are readying their outdoor skills for the Merrimack Valley LIFE Olympics to be held at Doherty Junior High on Friday, May 31.

Over 200 elders are expected to participate, said local LIFE organizer Kathy Prescott. Events scheduled for the contests include a frisbee throw, broom handle throw, bowling, croquet, volleyball and badminton. The games will begin at 10:30 a.m., and a rain date is set for June 4.

LIFE, which stands for Living is for the Elderly, is an organization for residents of nursing homes. The members lobby for the rights of nursing home residents and hold monthly meetings and social events.

Doherty Junior High students will assist with the Olympics, the lunch that follows and the awards ceremony after lunch. A group of LIFE members from the local LANAM chapter plan to meet with Doherty students in an assembly, as yet unscheduled. Prescott said the assembly will help the youngsters understand what it is like to live in a nursing home.

Members of the LANAM chapter (which includes residents from Lawrence, Andover, North Andover and Methuen) as well as LIFE members from groups in Lowell and Haverhill will participate in the Olympics.

At last month's LIFE meeting area elders spoke about nursing home living with students from Northern Essex Community College, in Haverhill. Last April 26 was National Nursing Home Residents' Day. Included in a panel of elders was Katherine Gordon, from Andover's Academy Manor Nursing Home.

Malighi solved the mystery of the blood vessels. He placed the simple and transparent tissue of the lung of a frog under the microscope and, at last, the connecting link of the capillaries joining arteries and veins was visible.

Will Discuss Commuter Alternatives

The Gillette Company and Tambone Development Corporation will sponsor a conference, "Commuter Transportation Management: Moving Toward 1990," May 16 from 10 a.m. to noon at the Gillette Company, 30 Burt Road, Andover. Representatives from all Ballardvale area businesses have been invited.

The conference is being held in response to industry and community concern over the increasing traffic congestion in the Ballardvale Street/Route 125 areas of Wilmington and Andover.

Speakers will include Nancy Jeton, Andover's principal planner; Buzz Stapczynski, Wilmington's town manager; and Colleen McKenna of Caravan for Commuters, Inc., a non-profit corporation offering commuter transportation management services statewide.

Topics for discussion include an update on Ballardvale Street road construction; a report on Andover's request for a Route 93 interchange between Route 125 and Dascumb Road; and an examination of commuter transportation management techniques, immediately available or to be developed according to demand.

The ultimate goal of the conference is to develop a comprehensive plan which can enable Ballardvale area businesses to increase employee accessibility to the area and ameliorate traffic congestion for all users.

BABY TALK

by Jack Resnick

It really is amazing, but a baby begins to see as soon as he/she is born. So, right away you as a parent can help your baby enjoy looking at the world around him/her. For instance, bring interesting objects close enough for the baby to see clearly. Handle your baby in ways that help him/her to be alert and interested in you and the objects that are nearby. Carry your baby to objects that he or she can't see well without your help, like interesting wallpaper or flowers in the garden. Very important, show your pleasure when your baby looks at objects carefully, and talk to him/her about the things he/she looks at.

There is a complete assortment of baby needs available at TINY TOTLAND. We feature famous makers including Simmons, Childcraft, Bassett and Morigeaux. Over 80 cribs are on display. Ask about our lay-a-way plan, no extra charge. We feature wall decorations and many accessories. Babies toys...everything from "heaven to seven." Open 9-5:30 Mon. & Th. 9-9. Delivery service anywhere from TINY TOTLAND, 1111 Elm St., Manchester, N.H. 1-603-623-6171. "Where quality costs you Less."

Center Readies Uniforms For Extra Innings

When Myron Grimshaw played for the Boston Red Sox in 1907, he probably didn't give a second thought to the care of his uniform.

But this month, conservators at the Museum of American Textile History's Textile Conservation Center in North Andover are spending hours repairing, cleaning and preserving Grimshaw's Red Sox shirt and two other uniforms dating back to baseball's early days.

The uniforms belong to the national Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum, Inc. in Cooperstown, N.Y., and are part of a collection of uniforms dating from 1900 to the present and ranging in materials from flannel to double-knits.

Like the players themselves, many of these uniforms are beginning to show signs of age. Fabric is yellowing, insignias are fading and insects have made tiny holes in some of the garments.

As a first step in a long-range program to repair damage and prevent further deterioration in the uniforms, Baseball Hall of Fame registrar Peter P. Clark decided to send three of the oldest uniforms to the Museum of American Textile History for evaluation.

Located in a modern, well-equipped laboratory with controlled temperature and humidity, the Textile Conservation Center was founded in 1976 to provide conservation services to offset the many dangers to textile artifacts.

Under the direction of conservator Jane K. Hutchins, the center staff of six evaluates, repairs and conserves nearly 300 objects a year, ranging from a rayon flag that has been to the moon and pennants that have flown atop historic boats to beaded vases from Russia and one of the earliest American samplers. This month, the center is concentrating on uniforms and costumes, including an Indian wedding garment and two of Mrs. Tom Thumb's dresses.

The Grimshaw Red Sox shirt, Rube Walberg's 1928 Philadelphia Athletics shirt and John McGraw's 1913-17 New York Giants uniform, arrived at the center earlier this month with a letter from Clark seeking "advice on what types of treatment can be performed to put them in a safe and stable condition.

Each garment was given a thorough examination and a written evaluation was submitted to the Hall of Fame.

The Textile Conservation Center estimates it will cost nearly $650 for the prescribed treatment on the Grimshaw shirt, which includes photographing the shirt, wet cleaning, shaping and air drying, preparing a lining pattern, preparing a lining, positioning and sewing a lining, couching the most serious breaks, reinserting the cord trim and packing the uniform in an acid free box for its return to the Hall of Fame.

According to Hutchins, the prognosis for the uniform is good. "Wet cleaning is proposed as an attempt to reduce the acidity of the stained areas and to remove residual soil that might still attract insects," she says. "We anticipate that this treatment will slow the rate of deterioration of the garment."

The lining, which will eventually run half the length of the garment, is being added to stabilize and camouflage the losses in the fabric and to provide support for display.

The other two uniforms do not require as extensive treatments, so costs will run approximately $200 each, says Hutchins.

"We're starting this year with three uniforms, but we're hoping it will be a yearly project," says Clark. "We're looking forward to a long relationship with the museum."

In 1979 America's crops of 7.3 billion bushels of corn and 2.2 billion bushels of soybeans were the largest on record.

Miss America Performs

People who attended the Collins Center last week were given two shows for the price of one as Miss America, Sharlene Wells, sang on the Collins' stage several times and acted as master of ceremonies for the The Young Ambassadors singing and dancing troupe of Brigham Young University, who also put on a great performance with their "From America With Love." Miss America told students and parents how winning the beauty queen title changed her life at a pre-performance buffet dinner held at the high school. Before becoming Miss America, Miss Wells attended Brigham Young University and performed with the Young Ambassadors all over the country. This was the first time in a while Miss America performed on the same stage with the singing and dancing troupe. Photos clockwise from upper left: Miss America, Sharlene Wells, talks at the buffet; Kristen Murphy, 13, and Jennifer Thomas, 12, both of Nashua N.H., listen to Miss America; Miss America at the pre-performance buffet; Five-year-old Ethan Olson enjoys his meal but cannot keep his eyes off of Miss America; The Young Ambassadors perform as a marching band; Two members of the Ambassadors dance to the theme, a day at the beach, during the roaring Twenties; Miss America, Sharlene Wells, sings on stage.

Pianist In Concert

Joan Rowland

The music department of Phillips Academy will present Joan Rowland, internationally acclaimed pianist, in a recital on Friday, May 10, at 7:30 p.m. in Graves Hall on the Andover campus. The concert is free and open to the public.

Rowland, born in Toronto of Canadian nationality, began playing the piano at the age of four. She gave her first solo recital in Toronto at the age of nine and made her orchestral debut with the Buffalo Civic Orchestra the same year. She appeared as soloist with the Toronto Symphony at 11, immediately followed by appearances with a number of other symphony orchestras. During her high school years she maintained a schedule of numerous radio and recital dates. Her principal piano studies were with Mona Bates and Madeline Bone at the Royal Conservatory of Music and in composition with Oskar Morawetz.

Rowland was a pupil of Edward Steuermann of the Juilliard School of Music. Her New York recital debut was made at 18, about which the New York Times critic wrote, "Her playing gave an impression of poise and skill and interpretative temperament... and the technical ability was exhibited with considerable brilliance." About her next Town Hall recital, the New York Times had such comments as, "Her difficult program was well devised and all of it was accurately and expressively played... exquisitely performed... filled with charm... a virtuostic and extremely musical account." Rowland joined Columbia Artists Management for solo and chamber music concerts which took her to 36 states as well as eastern and western Canada. Subsequent chamber music tours followed as a member of the Reginald Kell Players.

Rowland was a first-prize winner at the International Festival of Modern Music in Darmstadt and won a first prize at the Mozarteum Piano Competition in Salzburg. The awards resulted in engagements with orchestra and as soloist in Germany and Austria. Last year the C.B.C. inaugurated a show case for Canadian artists, in which she was chosen as a National Auditions winner. Her various re-engagements with the Toronto Symphony have brought the total to 16.

Rowland has taught both privately and at various music schools in New York and Toronto. She is an assistant to Karl Ulrich Schnabel. Recently they formed a piano duo specializing in concerts of original compositions for one piano, four-hands. She has been conducting workshops and master classes throughout Ontario and California and holds a B.A. in English Literature from Columbia University.

Rowland is married to a New York magazine executive and they have four children. Always fond of sports, she was an instructor in sailing and swimming at a northern Ontario summer camp for many summers.

The first special-delivery stamp was issued in 1885.

Local Students Featured In Musical At Academy

Phillips Academy's 1985 Spring musical, "Cabaret," will feature Andover students in leads and in several supporting roles. Based on Christopher Isherwood's novel, "Berlin Diaries," and Philip Vandrueten's "I Am A Camera," the musical will be presented in George Washington Hall on Friday, May 17, and Saturday, May 18, at 8 p.m.

Andover students appearing in the play are Steven Shrestinian of Mitton Circle, who plays the M.C., originally played by Joel Grey; Hilary Feier of College Circle, who will play Sally Bowles, the young American in Berlin portrayed by Liza Minelli in the film. Jennifer Amstutz of Lovejoy Road, Jennifer Lewis of Brentwood Circle and Becky Penner of Phillips Academy will play guests at the Kit Kat Club. Michael Greer of Salem Street will play the Maitre D' and Rob Devaney of Argilla Road, Rob Mattedi of Oriole Drive, Jeff Penner of Phillips Academy, Jeremy Payne of Skopelos Circle and Steve Trussell of North Main Street will fill out the cast of waiters and guests.

Chris Christo of Mill Pond Road and Peter Coughlan of Hillside Road, both of North Andover, will play sailors.

Musical Featured In Lowell

"A Little Night Music," the award-winning musical comedy by Stephen Sondheim, will be presented by the Merrimack Repertory Theatre May 17-June 2. Based on the film comedy "Smiles of a Summer Night," "A Little Night Music" burst upon the Broadway scene in 1973, capturing the Tony, Critics Circle and Drama Desk awards for best musical. Its lyrical score is highlighted by the now-classic ballad "Send in the Clowns."

The Merrimack has assembled a distinguished cast of Broadway's most respected performers for this production. Heading the cast is Jo Sullivan as Desiree. Her Broadway appearances include "Perfectly Frank," based on the music of her late husband, Frank Loesser, "Carousel," "Wonderful Town" and "Most Happy Fella."

She is joined by Benay Venuta who made her Broadway debut in the original cast of Cole Porter's "Anything Goes" and has appeared in New York and regional theaters for the past 50 years.

The company also includes Christopher Cuccill, Rhonda Farer, Kevin Gray, who scored a success in the Off-Broadway revival of Stephen Sondheim's "Pacific Overtures" earlier this year, receiving a "New Faces" accolade from the New York Times for his performance, Howard Hensel, the only American in the original Paris production of Peter Brook's "La Tragedie De Carmen," Nancy Hudson-Snell, Glenn Mure, Kerry Sullivan and Tricia Withim.

The production will be directed by Richard Rose, who directed the musical "Working" at MRT last season. Gary English will design the set and Judy Brown will direct the music. MRT's resident costume and lighting designers, Amanda Aldridge and David "Sparky" Lockner, will design costumes and lights.

Performances are Tuesdays through Saturdays at 8 p.m. with the opening performance Friday, May 17, at 7:30 p.m. only; Sundays at 4 p.m. and a Wednesday, May 22, matinee at 2 p.m. Group rates are available. Reservations are available through the box office.

Annual Maifest At Music Hall

Once every Spring the Methuen Memorial Music Hall has its se-date, magnificent appearance enhanced by Spring flowers, Bavarian costumed waitresses and a Pop Concert atmosphere, all this in preparation for "Maifest," the kick-off event for the Spring and Summer season at the world-famous organ hall. The date is May 17 at 8:30 p.m. Mrs. Ellen Stahle and Mrs. Ellen Meuse, co-chairmen, announce that tickets are going well with very few available for seats on the floor. Reservations are still available for second and third row balcony, however, and may be made by calling Mrs. Stahle, Mrs. Meuse or George Newall, treasurer.

Robert MacDonald will present a program of light music for the Pop Concert segment of the evening while the Brauhaus Bavarian Band will play for Wine, cheese and dancing and listening crackers and light refreshments will be offered during the second portion of the evening.

To Address Annual Meeting

Linda Weltner

The Friends of Andover Memorial Hall Library will hold their annual meeting May 15 at 7:30 p.m. at the library. After a brief business meeting and the election of officers, Linda Weltner, feature writer for the Boston Globe, will speak on "Writing from Personal Experience—Pitfalls and Opportunities."

Although Weltner is probably best known for her column, "Ever So Humble," which appears weekly on Fridays in the Globe, she is also a successful published novelist and is the author of many plays. Discussing her genre, Weltner says, "My writing has never been an act separate from my life. I write to communicate what I have learned from intense attention to the details of daily living."

Her first teens' novel, "Beginning to Feel the Magic," grew out of one of her Globe columns about a childhood tonsilectomy. Her heroine wins the lead in the school play opposite the boy of her dreams only to lose it all when she catches the measles. As a mother of two teenage daughters, she had been reading teenage books for years when John Keller, Little, Brown editor, suggested that she turn her column about the tonsilectomy into a novel for teenagers.

Weltner's second novel, "The New Voice," is about teenage life today as seen on the nationally-televised PBS series of the same title. The story-line portrays six high school students bored with classes and often in trouble who find maturity and purpose in revitalizing the old school paper.

Everyone is urged to come and hear this dynamic writer. A reception, with special refreshments, will follow.

The contest theme is "Focusing on the Elderly." As many as three photos may be submitted to the Senior Center, Bartlet Street, Andover. The Senior Center is open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Entrants have until May 18 to submit photos.

To Conduct Vision Screening

The Andona Society will sponsor amblyopia screening for three, four and five year olds jointly with the preschool screening program of the Andover Public Schools.

Andona Society members were recently trained to conduct vision screening, using the "E" game. Amblyopia screening, in conjunction with the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Blindness, is one of the community services Andona provides. Co-chairpersons Patricia Chalfin and Karen Shettel and committee members, Andrea Larsen and Mary O'Brien, will coordinate the screening.

Amblyopia, commonly referred to as lazy eye, is a condition of reduced or dim vision in an eye which appears normal. A child often suffers permanent damage to eyesight if the condition is undetected. With early detection and proper treatment, chances of regaining normal vision are improved.

Parents can facilitate the screening by teaching their children the "E" game. This may be done by using a large capital E and pointing it up, down, right and left and asking the child to point correspondingly.

If a child's performance during screening indicates that a vision problem exists, the parents will be advised to arrange for a professional eye examination.

Pre-kindergarten screening will be conducted during regular orientation sessions at Shawsheen School during the next month. Dates and times for screening other three and four year olds will be announced later.

Awards For Junior Gardeners

Two members of the Junior Garden Club of Andover received prizes during the recent standard flower show presented by the Essex Agricultural and Technical Institute and the Northeastern and Northern Districts of the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts.

The theme of the presentation, held in Danvers on April 27 and 28, was "Spring Into Summer."

Linnea Basu received an honorable mention for her interpretation of "Ice Cream Treat of Delicacy." Melissa King won a blue ribbon for her "Backyard Fun" entry, which incorporated a child's toy in an 18" sandbox square.

The Andover Junior Garden Club is sponsored by the Andover Garden Club, now in its 57th year of programming. The youth group meets the first Saturday of the month, November through May, in the Bank of New England, Bay State civic room.

Mrs. Cyril M. White is chairman, assisted by Co-Chairman Mrs. Stephen Poor. Other committee members are Mrs. William B. Gruener and Mrs. Paul H. King. Mrs. Adeline M. Wright, an honorary member of the Andover Garden Club, acts as advisor.

Transportation and show will cost $15. Lunch is not included, but if you'd like to eat out, you can come to the center early and join the hot lunch program. (Make your lunch reservation when

There will be another afternoon of super entertainment at the Sheraton Mansfield June 24. You'll have lunch and then an afternoon of great entertainment. And all for $25. Lunch is choice of baked ham or breast of chicken. But, you have to sign up now.

For future planning, and it is not too early to sign up for this one, there is a special three-day trip to the Summit Lodge in Killington, Vermont, scheduled for July 9-11. There will be a fun-filled program produced by Charles Holbrook that you know you will enjoy thoroughly. Cost-dou-ble occupancy is $180.

An unusual and exciting day trip is planned for July 18. Travel with us to Boston on our deluxe bus, then board a cruise boat for a sail to Gloucester. You'll get off in Gloucester, have lunch at the Studio Restaurant, shop at Rocky Neck and the back aboard your cruise ship for the return voyage to Boston. And, of course, the bus will be waiting for you to bring you back to Andover. Cost for the day is $25 and luncheon is choice of schrod or chicken. Just think of spending a hot July day cooled by sea breezes and you'll want to sign up now.

The Andover Haven Associates invite all senior citizens in the area to join them in some special trips, too. A group will leave May 20 for the Thinkaus Manor in the Adirondacks.

Request To Expand Andover Street Building Withdrawn

By Susan Rand

After one dozen neighbors opposed his plan to renovate his 38-40 Andover Street building, James Fiorenza, 277 Lowell St., withdrew a request before the Zoning Board of Appeals to add a second floor and an addition on the first floor of his business—renovations he said would cost him $150,000.

It would be inappropriate to expand the Andover Street building, Atty. George Rand told the board at their meeting last Thursday evening. Rand was hired by six neighboring families to oppose Fiorenza's plan.

"We believe now, with residential area across the street, that it would be entirely inappropriate to grant the variances for expansion," Rand told the board. "The only hardship is financial. Obviously, if you put a bigger building here, he can produce more income."

Fiorenza told the board, through his attorney, Philip Sullivan, that he would be willing to withdraw his request at the site visit the board planned to the Andover Street property last Saturday morning. He did withdraw the request but did not return a call to THE TOWNSMAN to discuss why he decided to withdraw his petition.

Fiorenza's half-acre lot, located on Industrial D land, now houses the Artistic Performance Hair Salon and the Bel Capri Deli and Convenience Store. He wanted to add 2,400 square feet of office space on a second floor and additional floor space for an office, which he would use, and a craft shop, on the first floor.

After their deliberation meeting on Saturday morning, following site visits, the board said no to Melvin and Arlene Zaft's request for a variance to allow them to add a wooden deck to a pool behind their 17 Belknap Drive home. A variance was needed because the deck would be too close to the side lot line of the Zaft's property. Melvin Zaft told the board his neighbors had no objections to the deck but the ZBA tentatively denied the request, saying there were other options for the deck, said Vice-Chairman Jane Griswold.

The board's decisions are tentative, pending a full board vote when the written decision is submitted to the five members for the final vote.

The board approved a special permit request from Hewlett Packard to install a satellite dish antenna at their Minuteman Road headquarters. The antenna, which will be 3.7 meters in diameter and 14 feet high, will allow the company to participate in conferences with groups in this country and overseas.

Maria and James Hamilton's request for a variance allowing them to add a two-car garage, family room and porch to their 26 Sutherland St. home was also approved. The couple told the board they were planning a family and wanted to expand their small ranch home. They needed the variance because the house, with the proposed addition, would be too close to a side lot line.

At the ZBA's April meeting the board put off a decision on Maureen and Kevin Hibbard's request to build a home on a lot which does not have frontage on a public way. That request was approved at Saturday's deliberation meeting.

The Billerica couple wants to live on land which fronts on Foster's Pond. Access to the property, now owned by Doris and Norman Kearny, of Everett, is off Gray Drive, which is off Pomroy Road. The couple have the three-acre site under agreement, pending the board's decision.

Women & Joint Custody

After divorce or separation, joint legal custody means that you and your husband must consult and agree on all major decisions governing your children's lives such as medical care, education and religious training. In recent years, joint legal custody has become very fashionable for separated and divorced couples because it appears to offer a way to involve both parents in their children's lives. However, joint legal custody requires you to maintain continued contact with your husband and may mean additional Court involvement in your family's life when you and your husband cannot agree.

Administrator Switch At Secondary Schools

There will be another chorus of musical chairs when secondary school administrators, now off the job, return to their schools next fall.

Expected back is Andover High principal Mary Athey Jennings, who has been on a maternity leave since last October. And Richard McGrail, principal of Doherty Junior High, who has been out since December on a medical leave, is also planning to start work full-time at Doherty this fall. McGrail, who suffered heart problems, has been working mornings at the Bartlet Street school.

When Jennings left the high school, Assistant Principal Stephen Richardson was appointed acting principal to take her place. He will return to his assistant principal job. And at Doherty, Assistant Principal Jack Hughes, McGrail's substitute, will return to his assistant's position.

Doherty business teacher Kenneth Pellerin, who was working as acting assistant principal while Hughes was acting principal, will also return to his teaching post.

Area Fire Chiefs Encourage Andover's Suit Vs. B. and M.

By Susan Rand

Two area fire chiefs are applauding Andover's possible lawsuit to recover the costs of fighting a fire that local officials allege was started as sparks from a B&M freight train passing through town ignited brush along the railroad tracks.

One of those towns has had more luck with the railroad company, getting B&M officials to agree to pay for the overtime costs for firefighters who battled two fires along the tracks in North Andover last month. But North Andover's Fire Chief William Dolan told THE TOWNSMAN this week that he has yet to see the over $2,000 he billed B&M.

"If we don't receive the money within a reasonable amount of time we'll go after them," Dolan told THE TOWNSMAN.

There has been no progress in Andover's proposed lawsuit against B&M. Last week Town Counsel Alfred L. Daniels said he had two eye witnesses who saw the freight train ignite brush that touched off the April 12 blaze which left 75 to 100 scorched acres near the Mystic Warehouse, on Lowell Junction Road. The attorney has not yet met with the two individuals and will not go any further with the suit until he has signed statements from both, he said.

Daniels will not release the two names until after he interviews the persons, he said. He expects to meet with them this week and then make a recommendation on the feasibility of a suit to the Board of Selectmen.

B&M refuses to accept blame for the blaze, saying the freight train which passed through Andover on April 12 was outfitted with new brake shoes and did not have a build-up of carbon in the smokestack, both of which are often implicated in train-started brush fires, said B&M spokesman Dennis Coffey.

Coffey met with Town Manager Kenneth Mahony on Monday, leaving the manager "encouraged" by the session. A week earlier Mahony had sharply criticized the railroad company, calling it "self-serving, inefficient and uncooperative."

Mahony said he hasn't decided whether the town will bill B&M for overtime expenses and medical tests for all Andover personnel at the April 12 fire, adding that he didn't know when he would make that decision.

The medical tests, conducted at the Lawrence General Hospital, measured each Andover firefighter and town officials at the fire for smoke inhalation and any ill effects from chemicals stored at Mystic. Hospital cost estimates show that the tests could cost the town over $3,000.

The April 12 fire brought firefighters from 14 communities to the blaze.

Haverhill Fire Chief Richard Borden called the Andover lawsuit against B&M "an excellent idea," saying he too is trying to recover funds from B&M.

At a fire two weeks ago along the railroad tracks in Haverhill a B&M train ran over a fire hose, cutting it in half. Borden said his department called B&M to warn them that firefighters were battling a fire along the tracks and had a hose draped across the rails, but, said the chief, the warning didn't do any good. He is billing B&M for about $212, the cost of the hose.

In a meeting with B&M's Coffey last Friday North Andover's Chief Dolan said he and the North Andover Board of Selectmen were told they would be reimbursed for the overtime costs of fighting the Sunday, April 21 fire, which was on the railroad tracks behind the AT&T building, off Chickering Road, and the Friday, April 26 fire, also on tracks behind businesses off Sutton Street.

Andover firefighters responded to North Andover's mutual aid call for help at the April 21 fire.

Of the North Andover bills Coffey would say only that B&M had received the bills. The bills will be reviewed, he said, and paid if B&M officials think they are "appropriate." Coffey would not explain what types of bills would be deemed appropriate, saying only that the review process was "a long, internal process. I would not like to comment."

Borden, Dolan and Andover's Fire Chief William Downs are trying to get B&M officials to remove old railroad ties from alongside the tracks. When new railroad ties are put down the old ties, which are soaked with creosote, a wood preservative, are left near the tracks.

It is those highly flammable ties that are the greatest hazard, said Borden. And once the ties get going, said Downs, it is hard to put the fire out.

"It is not a matter of whether the trains start the fire or not," Borden said. "It is a matter of responsibility. It's the ties. Even if the kids get out there and light them it's their (B&M's) responsibility."

Coffey told THE TOWNSMAN that B&M workers started to pick up the ties on Monday. Work crews started on the Atkinson, N.H.-Haverhill line, he said. They should finish an 11-mile set of double tracks that stretches through North Andover and Andover in about two weeks, said Coffey.

Proposes Reform

Rules reform may make its debut in Andover soon as School Committeeman Richard E. Neal, frustrated with the length of debate and discussion at the committee's last meeting, told the board he would present changes in school committee rules at their next meeting.

At 11:30 p.m., after an hour-long discussion on grouping in the elementary schools, Neal apologized to a group of teachers and curriculum specialists, who had waited three hours for the grouping discussion to begin. He told the meeting that his changes would avoid such a wait for other groups who wanted to talk with the committee.

"I appreciate the discussion," Neal said of the second grouping lesson the committee received on Tuesday evening. "And that the staff had to come here and sit through these meetings."

At present there is no limit on how long discussion will continue on matters before the board. Neal said he wanted to schedule discussion with groups present early on the evening's agenda and limit discussion on some topics.

Neal declined to discuss the specifics of his proposed rule changes after the meeting, saying he would wait until he had his proposal in hand, at the next meeting, set for Tuesday, May 21, at 7:30 p.m., in the school committee conference room on the second floor of the school administration building, Whittier Street.

For her help in recruiting three Andover High School students to sign up for with the United States Air Force, a certificate of merit from the USAF was presented to Ruby Easton, who is the Project Discovery head in the schools. Giving Easton her award is Assistant Superintendent for secondary education Leslie Loomis as School Committeeman Michael Giannusso looks on.

Great Turnout For Fishing Derby

Over 130 boys and girls spent a great day for fishing at the Andover Sportsmen's Club 36th annual trout fishing derby at Hussey's Pond in Shawsheen Square. The derby, conducted by the club since 1949, started at 6 a.m. and ran until 3 p.m. and was held for youngsters 12 years of age and under. Prizes were awarded to the boys and girls who caught the largest trout. The pond was well stocked with 200-300 pounds of trout by the Andover Sportsmen's Club for this event and around 150 fish were caught by the end of the derby. Photos clockwise from upper left: Curt Olander helps his niece, Julie Cantillon, six, with her line; Nine-year-old Melissa Smerdon of Lawrence displays her catch of the day, 13 in all, with a second place winner on the line, a 16.5 inch trout. Melissa made a day of it by starting right at six a.m. and continuing until 3 p.m.; David Kincaid of Haverhill St. and his six-year-old daughter, Brooke, find a relaxing position while waiting for a bite; Brian Mayberry, 11, of Blueberry Circle won first place for the boy with the largest catch, 18 inches; Jeff Carbone, 11, uses canned corn for bait; Six-year-old Rachel Harvey takes up the slack in her line; Everybody finds a good location to cast their lines; Eight-year-old Marcie Lutsch of Washington Ave. won first place for the girls with this 19-inch, four-pound trout; Keogh Lutsch, 12, takes to the water in his hip boots for a good spot. He came in third with the largest catch for the boys.

Random Thoughts

A couple of random thoughts, while waiting for the warmth of spring to settle in:

Essex County Commissioners this week issued a report indicating that the cost of county government had been reduced by $1,457,011 over the past five years.

In the release it was pointed out that this saving to the taxpayers of the county was due to the state takeover of the court system as well as the cooperation between the commissioners and Essex County Advisory Board in holding the line on increased spending.

Pertinent to Andover and neighboring North Andover, in the statistics is the fact that their assessments for county costs have increased dramatically during the same five-year period.

Andover's assessment has increased $34,778.96 and North Andover has experienced a $104,523 hike in contributions to county government.

The assessments are based on population and valuation of the communities.

This seems like punishment for growth.

Both communities have experienced an upward surge in both residential and industrial development over the past five years and now are subject to increased costs of an archaic governmental system.

Efforts to do away with the county form of government have been frustrated over the past several years.

The particular form of government, dating back to the early days of the founding of the country, no longer serves a useful purpose. Much of its activity is a duplication of effort, with projects working virtually in tandem with either state or local governments.

The state takeover of the court system appeared to be an initial step in eliminating the county bureaucracy, but it stopped there.

County government initially met the need of providing an agency for residents to conveniently meet with a legislative body when transportation was limited and state government too difficult to reach.

All that has changed and it would appear that the time is now to modernize the governmental process by eliminating an agency no longer required.

As a supportive reason just think of the $34,000-plus it is costing Andover to add 6,200 residents to its roles over a five-year period and examine what the town is receiving in return.

Another matter concerns the inaction of conservation groups to trees in this community.

Conservation and environmental groups continue to acquire and express concern over swampy, mosquito-breeding lands within the confines of the town, yet when hearings are scheduled for the removal of trees, there is little or no action.

Also, when the state came through a short time ago and massacred the trees along the Route 125 bypass, no one seemed to care.

On that stretch of roadway the trees, which once arched the highway, were cut back and the stubby ends of branches left exposed to infestation by insects, leaving the trees open to disease.

Trees are as environmentally important as land acquisition and protection of watersheds.

It would seem appropriate, then that those groups which espouse concern for environment take some interest in what is happening to the trees in our community before they are hacked under the guise of protection and aeration, or chopped down completely.

Down The Years With The Townsman

75 Years Ago — May 1910

The full-page drawing on the back cover of a recent issue of "Life" is the work of one of Andover's young men, William H. Foster. It portrays a race between a train and an auto, and is used to accompany an advertisement of the Oldsmobile.

London, May 7 — King Edward VII, who returned to England from a vacation ten days ago, died at 11:45 o'clock last night in the presence of his family, after an illness of less than a week, which was serious hardly more than three days. One of the last utterances attributed to King Edward was: "Well, it is all over, but I think I have done my duty."

It is no surprise that the young men of the town don't take kindly to the recent suggestion as to the disposal of the Playstead. It is to be regretted that no definite vote was passed making the Park Commission the controllers of the Playstead. There is the natural responsibility and to them the work of care and further improvement should certainly be left at the very next town meeting.

Yes, he is rich, and he will probably be enough richer so that when he dies he will be called one of the wealthy men of the town ... and not a real friend will weep at his grave.

50 Years Ago — May 1935

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sharpe of Andover-Street, Ballardvale, have been receiving congratulations since Tuesday on the birth of a son, but Mrs. Rhoda W. Davis of Salem street, Andover's oldest resident, has been receiving about four times as many congratulations because she is the great-great-grandmother of the child. There are five living generations of the family now.

One-hundred twenty-five children, some knowing that they are trembling, others trembling but pretending they're not, will face Horace M. Poynter on the stage of the town hall this evening as the well-known academy instructor gives out the words in the annual Lincoln public school spelling contest. Professor Alfred W. Leonard will act as umpire.

Miss Clara A. Putnam, principal of the Stowe Junior high school, will retire in June, she stated to Superintendent of Schools Henry C. Sanborn Tuesday, thus putting an end to the rumors that an attempt was being made to have her continue for another year. A special act of the Legislature would have been necessary to continue Miss Putnam since she will reach the retirement age before school reopens in September.

25 Years Ago — May 1960

The town is only vaguely beginning to see the impact that two new highways can have. Those who unofficially use Route 93 are aware of the traveling time saved, how

Dealing With A Surplus

While debate in Washington centers on a deficit and possible tax increases, debate on Beacon Hill centers on a surplus and tax cuts. Dealing with a surplus is a new experience for most public officials, and I think the House acted wisely last week in the face of enormous pressure to do otherwise. The House passed a bill which divides the surplus into a tax cut, a local aid and budget stabilization fund and dedicated funds for pensions.

Every good cause in the public sector had its eye on the state surplus. I heard proposals to use the surplus to fix our roads, to raise teachers' salaries, to clean up landfills which are polluting water supplies, to prevent child abuse, to attract more doctors to Medicaid by raising reimbursement rates, to fix our crumbling state hospitals and to send more to our communities for public safety.

While each of these proposals has merit, to build such expenditures into our base budget would invite certain trouble next year when state revenues are expected to drop. We would then be forced to either cut the program just instituted or raise taxes to fund it.

Likewise, proposals to use the entire surplus for a tax rebate ignore two fiscal realities: the staggering 11 billion dollar unfunded pension liability and the growing dependence of our cities and towns on state aid. The Local Aid Stabilization Fund, established in this legislation, will protect our cities and towns in the event of an economic downturn or federal program cuts. Likewise, the decision to contribute a portion of the surplus to our unfunded pension liability represents good management as well as a moral obligation.

The 64-million-dollar personal income tax cut is a well deserved "growth dividend" to the taxpayers whose hard work brought Massachusetts to this position of economic strength. Although modest, this tax cut is a clear signal that the "grab-every-dollar-and-spend-it" attitude has changed in state government. Maybe we learned something from the fiscal chaos in the federal government.

I am always interested in your comments on this or any other issue. I can be reached at 722-2070, or by mail R. 473-G State House, Boston, 02133.

The Public Forum

Disappointed

To The Editor Of The TOWNSMAN:

Recently, the issue of a developmental primary was discussed in a TOWNSMAN editorial. I am disappointed that the TOWNSMAN has taken such a simplistic and naive position, that is, expecting parents and other to leave the development of educational programs exclusively to the "professionals." The task of educating our children is more complex than simply determining programs by face validity or fiat. Some of the best conceived and seemingly valid educational endeavors have failed miserably.

We should not forget "sight" reading, language labs and drug education programs. There is no situation so bad that we cannot make it worse. Traditional drug education programs, for example, have face validity and seem to be an important and useful deterrent to drug abuse; yet, research has adequately demonstrated that if these programs teach youngsters about pharmacology and the dangers of drug use, drug use increases as a result. This is certainly not what was intended by the well-meaning school administrators who implemented these programs. Though this situation has a pessimistic ring, it reminds us of the first principle of medical ethics: "do no harm." More recently, this principle has been accepted by numerous health care insurance providers by requiring a second opinion on surgical procedures. Lawyers often suggest second opinions and the government of the United States is founded on a system of checks and balances. Doctors, lawyers and politicians are no less professional than our teachers; they accept second opinions and so should the Andover school system. Having corroborative information is essential and differing perspectives promote dialogue; the result is often a new, more useful point of view. The scientific method rests on a similar conceptual exchange. Scientists are professionals who rarely accept research findings without careful valuation just because they appear valid.

Many first loft parents have a vivid recollection of their child's first year (1984) in the Andover school system, i.e., kindergarten, when teachers were switched with little warning and no prior discussion. Some of the children experienced adverse emotional reactions to that event in spite of Ms. Haslam's assurances to the contrary. Ms. Haslam is a professional who made a poor decision when confronted with a difficult administrative dilemma. There is no situation so bad that it cannot be made worse. The future lies in the education of our children; they deserve to have a careful analysis made of every educational approach—let alone a new program.

Ms. Alexander, the principal of the Bancroft school, suggested that "you don't question a carpenter once they are hired." Well, I do. I also ask for and offer many second opinions on items of importance. Frankly, from what was presented at the school committee meetings, the issue of developmental groupings did not seem particularly important. If this issue was not important, as it had seemed, then what was responsible for the powerful and emotionally charged defensive posture evidenced by the school administrators? If it is an important issue, dialogue is essential. Asking parents to offer "blind faith" seems unreasonable and excessive, particularly in light of numerous efforts by educational professionals to implement progressive programs that resulted in failure. Teacher interest in progressive educational approaches is a necessary, but not sufficient, cause for implementing a new program, regardless of how promising it appears to be.

Our primary grades are already grouped developmentally to some extent, and the Gesell work has been around for more than four decades. It can hardly be considered progressive or the source of new information about human development. Change usually occurs as a result of necessity and only rarely from a human interest to progress: Why is this program being considered now? What evidence is there beyond fiat and face validity to suggest that the proposed program will improve the quality of the current elementary curriculum? Interestingly, some parents with older children suggest that developmental groupings were unsuccessfully implemented and then revoked in the Andover school system years previously.

Zoning Board May Rule On Day Care Center May 20

Still to be decided by the Zoning Board of Appeals is whether Gwen Hedrick can run a day care center at a home on the corner of Wild Rose Drive and Lowell Street.

The board has scheduled a deliberation meeting for Monday, May 20, to discuss Hedrick's proposal, left over from the April 4 meeting, and a variance request from William and Frances Fay, 173 High St.

Hedrick's special permit request for Cuddle Care Inc., an allowed business-with ZBA approval-on the Single Residence B-zoned parcel, was met by loud opposition from some of Hedrick's would-be neighbors at the ZBA public hearing last month. No testimony from residents will be allowed at the ZBA's May 20 deliberation meeting, when board members make their decision on the request.

Before they made a decision on the Fay request the Appeals Board has asked for more information from the Planning Board, said ZBA Vice Chairwoman Jane Griswold. The Fays have requested a variance to allow them to subdivide their lot into two lots.

Planning Board approval of the subdivision is contingent upon a variance from the ZBA, the board was told by William Fay last Thursday. Fay wants to build a home on the back portion of his land and use the income from the sale of the property to finish renovations on his 108-year-old house and barn, which is on the front section of the parcel.

The Fays need the variance because their home is too close to the side lot line on the High Street property.

Bicentennial Elms To Fall

By Sue Aucella Deacon

One of Andover's last two surviving "bicentennial elms" will fall by mid-summer, a victim of Dutch elm disease, Parks and Grounds Superintendent James Bamford reported this week.

The diseased American elm, measuring approximately 50 inches in diameter, is located at 107 Bailey Road in West Andover, where it has been standing since 1776, or perhaps even earlier.

When a group of townspeople surveyed every elm in Andover in May 1975 in search of "bicentennial elms," they identified the Bailey Road tree as one of three 200-year-old elms standing on town property. (The age of the trees was gauged by their size.) The other two were found at the corner of Lowell Street and Lovejoy Road, and on Hidden Road.

The Hidden Road tree was later found to be diseased and has since been removed, Bamford said; with the Bailey Road tree scheduled for removal "by mid-summer," the Lowell Street elm will remain the lone bicentennial survivor.

When town tree department staffers suspected that the large Bailey Road elm had contracted Dutch elm disease, they sent twig samples to the shade tree laboratory at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst, Bamford said. There the diagnosis was confirmed.

No one has objected to the proposed removal, he added, which was discussed during a public hearing last Friday afternoon at town offices on Bartlet Street.

Three other proposed tree removals were discussed during that hearing as well; only one resident attended, and asked questions about the elm, Bamford said.

With no objections heard from townspeople, one London planetree measuring five inches in diameter and one five-inch Norway maple, both located on Essex Street, will be removed to make way for a new addition to Memorial Hall Library, the superintendent said.

He explained that the library project contractor will remove the trees and replace them with two new trees that will be "at least as large, and certainly healthier."

And at the request of private property-owners, a 20-inch white pine will be removed from 172 Woburn St., where it is blocking the view from the homeowners' driveway, Bamford said.

No one objected to that removal during last Friday's hearing, he said. The residents will remove the pine at their own expense.

According to state law, public hearings must be held on the proposed removal of trees from public property. No hearing was required for the elm because it is diseased, Bamford said, but he included it in the hearing to give interested townspeople an opportunity to discuss the removal.

AVIS Annual Canoe Races

The Andover Village Improvement Society (A.V.I.S.) held their 15th annual Shawsheen River Canoe Races last Saturday. Under sunny skies and mild temperatures, a dozen canoes, made up of racers that consisted of high school students, fathers and sons, husbands and wives, friends and one kayak paddler, teamed up to provide the power needed to win this race. Entrants were given the choice of entering one of two different races, the one-mile or two-mile. Both started at the Horn Bridge on Central Street and went to Ballardvale and returned to the starting line. The Army National Guard was on hand earlier to clear fallen trees from the race course. Photos clockwise from upper left: Reg Marden of Orchard St. and his three-year-old daughter, Sarah, get ready for the start of the race; Steve Guttermann of Andover heads towards the finish line with a time of 46 minutes and 16 seconds to win the two-mile race in his Kayak; Father and son team, Harrison McCann and Ted McCann, 14, of Canterbury St. cross the finish line to win the one-mile race with a time of 20 minutes and 11 seconds. It was the second best time ever recorded in the event; Four-year-old Eric Frishman is ready to go with his white cap on to protect him from the sun and his life jacket; Graydon McCormick of North Andover and Dick Bonier of Andover create a splashing finish as they take second place in the two-mile race with a time of 47:59.

Warrior Nine Remains In Thick Of Conference Battle

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High varsity baseball team split a pair of one-run decisions last week, remaining just one game off the pace in the highly-competitive and well-balanced Large School Division of the Merrimack Valley Conference.

The Golden Warriors outlasted Tewksbury 10-9 in a free-swinging contest at Hazel Field, then saw an impressive seventh-inning comeback go by the boards in a tough 6-5 loss to Small School Division co-leader Dracut.

Those results left coach Bill Vickers' club at 4-4 in the league and 4-5 overall through games this past Monday.

But AHS remains in the thick of the fight for both the division title and an Eastern Mass. Division I Tournament berth, mainly because defending champ Billerica (5-3 MVC), Lawrence Central (4-3) and Lowell High (4-3) are all having just as much trouble winning consistently.

To qualify for the tourney, Andover must finish first or second in the division and/or win at least 59 percent of its games.

This week the Golden Warriors were scheduled to face Small School teams Lawrence High (under the lights at Mark Devlin Field), surprising Methuen (7-1) and unpredictable Greater-Lawrence Regional (3-5).

through the shortstop hole by junior infielder Earl Abdo.

Andover added a pair of runs in the fourth to hike the lead to 5-2, and from that point on the advantage swung back and forth before the locals finally nailed down the victory.

There were 26 hits in the game, 13 by each team, and nine different Andover players contributed to the offense.

Leadoff batter Rob DiTroia led the way with three hits in five trips, while junior shortstop John Nuzzo continued his hot streak with a 2-for-4 performance.

Junior second baseman Leo Gravel chipped in two safeties, and slapping one basehit apiece were junior DH Rob Carpentier, junior centerfielder Kevin Rourke, sophomore outfielder-first baseman Glenn Allard, senior Dave Schwedler, Smith and Abdo.

Junior Dave Sullivan came through with several fine defensive plays at first base, including one to extricate Klopacz from the bases-loaded jam in the opening stanza.

Carpentier also turned in a clutch relief performance.

Andover, 10-9

This game was played under typical New England spring weather conditions, a cold wind blowing most of the time and intermittent rain making things difficult for both teams.

Junior righthander John Klopacz (2-1) was the starting pitcher for AHS, and he came through with a courageous effort considering the adverse weather.

Tewksbury (6-5), involved in five straight one-run decisions where they've gone 1-4, moved ahead 2-0 in the early going.

The damage could have been much worse, however, the Redmen leaving the bases loaded in both the first and second innings.

In the second stanza Tewksbury had the bases filled with just one out, but Klopacz was able to work his way free.

The first two TMHS runs were both tainted, one scoring on a hit batsmen with the bases loaded, and the second crossing on an errant throw to the plate in a forceout situation.

The Golden Warriors battled back with three runs in the third, however, the key strokes a mammoth RBI double to leftfield by senior catcher Shane Smith and a clutch two-run single

Weiners Win; Aid Charity

When Mr. and Mrs. Lee Weiner of Andover played in a charity bridge game at Dawson's Bridge Studio in Reading recently, little did they know the extent of their accomplishment. When the scores from all participating bridge clubs in the country were checked by the American Contract Bridge League, the Weiners were the New England champions. As a result, the ACBL recently presented a check for $500 in the Weiners' name to the Greater Boston Chapter of the National Foundation for the Prevention of Child Abuse.

The Weiners have lived in the Merrimack Valley area practically all their lives. Lee started playing bridge more than 20 years ago and his wife, Judy, has been playing about 17 years. While they weren't exactly brought together by bridge, it helped cement their relationship, Weiner said.

Well-known in bridge and local business circles, Weiner is part owner of West St. Olds mobile in Lawrence and active in the local Rotary Club. He has served as president of the New England District of the American Contract Bridge League and the New Hampshire Bridge Association. He is a member of the board of the Eastern Massachusetts Bridge Association and a New England representative to the ACBL's national board of governors.

Formerly a school counselor, Mrs. Weiner is now associated with the Derry Counseling Service of Derry, N.H.

The Andover High School girls' tennis team, under the coaching of Karen Kennedy, have clinched six more victories, making their record 8-0. The team will have to complete one more match, which is against Haverhill, to finish half the season and the way they're going, there's nothing to stop them.

Warrior

Tewksbury while Scott Bolton, Dave Lindsey and Mike Bosia added two apiece.

Dracut, 6-5

The Middies, whose only loss through Monday was a 5-4 extra-inning decision to Billerica, defeated Andover for the first time in several years.

It wasn't easy, however, as the Golden Warriors battled back from a 5-2 deficit with three runs in the top of the seventh.

But the home team rebounded in the bottom half of the final frame, pushing across the game-winning on a walk, wild pitch and single.

Chris Callery led off the Dracut seventh by working AHS pitcher Rob Carpentier (1-2) for a free pass, and he promptly moved up when the ball skipped past the catcher to the screen.

Dracut Tri-Capt. Rick McElhinney then lashed a one-out gap shot to plate Callery with the deciding run.

Andover managed seven hits against winning pitcher Jeff Hamel, who hiked his record to 4-0 overall.

Seven different players spiked one safety each for the Golden Warriors, that group including Rob DiTroia, John Nuzzo, Shane Smith, Carpentier, Earl Abdoo, Kevin Rourke and senior outfielder Bob Charland.

Leo Gravell, who leads the club in on-base percentage, scored a pair of runs for Andover.

Fuzzy Fauvel and Hamel drilled two safeties each for the Middies, while Steve Talbot scored twice.

Andover inched ahead 1-0 in the first, but Dracut came back with three in the second and one in the fourth to take a 4-1 lead.

The rivals traded runs in the sixth to set up the double dramatics in the seventh.

Chris Kiene To Enroll At Merrimack

Chris Kiene, a draft pick of the New Jersey Devils and a key member of the New England Junior A League champion Springfield Olympics, has signed a letter of intent to enroll at Merrimack College next fall, Merrimack hockey coach Ron Anderson has announced.

Kiene, a 6'6", 214-lb. right-handed shooting defenseman, led the Olympics to the New England Junior A championship by scoring 68 points, ranking him third on the team overall and first among defensemen. A resident of South Windsor, Conn., Kiene was a front-line skater for the Olympics the past two years following a star-studded career at South Windsor High School.

Kiene is expected to make immediate on-ice contributions as a freshman next winter for the Warriors, according to Anderson.

"We feel Chris will fill the void on right defense left by the graduation of Paul Albano," Anderson says. "Depending, of course, how quickly Chris adjusts to the college game, I think he's going to have a tremendous impact on our program over the next four years. He has very good vision and awareness on the ice."

That was evident at South Windsor High School where Kiene was a three-time conference all-star who played defense and forward. He was named a Connecticut all-state forward as a junior, scoring 56 points in 20 games. Kiene has spent the past two winters skating a regular shift for the Olympics. Initially he skated as a forward, but was a defenseman this past season. The New Jersey

Devils took notice last spring and drafted Chris in the 12th round. Kiene will join a Merrimack team that mixes youth with experience and is coming off a 17-13-3 year which was good enough for third place in the Eastren College Athletic Conference (ECAC) Division II East race. At least 20 lettermen are expected back next season and only three will be lost to graduation, according to Anderson.

Kiene joins Jim Alcott of Saugus High School as the latest recruits to sign with the Warrior hockey team. Alcott, a left-winger, led his team and the Northeast Conference in scoring this past season with 35 goals and 34 assists.

Energy Grants

New England Telephone is accepting applications from small community organizations for its energy grant program. Awardees will receive a grant of up to $1,000 to assist in energy conservation efforts. A total of $40,000 will be distributed to organizations in Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont.

Preference will be given to those organizations that shelter and/or feed people in the community," said NET Public Relations Manager Cynthia White. "Religious organizations and their affiliates, along with tax-supported institutions such as public schools, are excluded."

Applications can be obtained from White at 199 Plain St., Lowell and should be submitted to NET by June 17. Completed applications should be sent to Energy Grant Program, New England Telephone, 185 Franklin St., Room 1104C, Boston, MA 02107.

The Vitascope Hall in New Orleans opened on June 26, 1896, becoming the first movie house. Admission was 10 cents.

Troop 79 Treks Trail

Scouts of Troop 79 went on a hike along the Isaac Davis Trail in Acton during the weekend of April 13-14. They left Andover on Saturday afternoon and found their campsite where about 1,100 other scouts represented every state of New England. At night there was a campfire with many speakers, including the mayor of Acton. The scouts were awakened the next morning at about 5 a.m. to be bused to the starting point of the Isaac Davis Trail, the actual route that Capt. Isaac Davis and his famous Minutemen took to Concord where the "shot heard 'round the world" took place. The hike was about seven miles and took about seven hours. Along the way there were men dressed in official Minutemen apparel who marched in front of the massive expedition and carried authentic muskets that they fired off in front of historic monuments along the way.

A canoe trip on the Baker River in New Hampshire is planned for a weekend in May. Troop 79, sponsored by St. Robert's Church, meets every Friday at 7 p.m. Anyone who is interested in the troop is always welcome.

Andover Nationals Little League

By Jim Arnold

National Majors

Superb pitching carried a young Cub team to consecutive season-opening wins and a spot atop the National Major League standings in the Andover Little League. The talented Cub mound corps quieted the Mets 12-3 and Braves 7-3 to remain the league's lone unbeaten after just one week of play.

In other action, the Pirates silenced the Cardinals 5-0, then fell to the Mets 14-9.

Cubs 12 - Mets 3

Sean Darwin struck out nine while walking only two in a 12-3 romp over a decent Met team. He benefited from the ineffectiveness of the Met staff, which handed out 15 bases on balls.

The Cub defense was aggressive and confident. Ten-year-old shortstop Gus Quattlebaum vacuumed everything available as did rightfielder Jim Hanning. Vincent Bradley paced the offense with a pair of hits, while Darwin, Hanning and Dan Feeley poked safeties. Darwin did the rest, stifling all Met rallies.

Bill Batchelder provided the only Met highlight, connecting for his second round-tripper of the season.

Cubs 7 - Braves 3

Jim Hanning and Ryan Lynch combined masterful pitching stints to frustrate the Braves 7-3. The 11-year-old Hanning keyed his team's plate performance, going 3-for-4.

Brian Novelline threw admirably for the Braves, allowing just four hits, but untimely walks and a porous defense spiked his effort.

Aside from Hanning's three hits, Garritt Ferris was the only Cub to collect a base hit. The Cubs made the most of their opportunities, however, by scoring in each of the first four frames.

Hanning whiffed eight in his three scoreless innings. Lynch relieved him, recording the save.

The Brave offense managed to get untracked in the late innings. Brian Lane hammered a double and Stuart Mackey and Novelline added solo hits to push across three runs.

Mets 14 - Pirates 9

The Mets upended a talented Pirates' squad for the second time in a week, overtaking the Buccaneers in the late innings just as they did on opening day.

The Pirates struck first behind the bats of Mike Hagerly, Jeff Hurley and Bryan Boucher. They built a 6-3 lead, despite swinging against the fastball of Met righthander

Bill Batchelder.

But, the Met offense ricocheted the offering of three different Pirate hurlers in the fourth inning. Batchelder led with three hits, while Richard Radowski and Ryan Evans connected twice apiece. Every Met reached base in the fifth when they scored six times to put the Pirates away.

After overcoming early wildness, Batchelder settled down to fan 11 Pirates. He was aided by third baseman Radowski, who guarded the corner flawlessly.

Pirates 5 - Cardinals 0

Bryan Boucher and Chris Zappala shut out a good hitting Cardinal team for the league's first blanking of the year. Steady Pirate gloves held the Cards at bay as Mike Murnane's team refused to give anything away for free. The same could not be said of the Redbirds.

All scoring took place in the opening inning. A Matt Orlando single, Boucher hit, Jeff Hurley double and P.J. Johnson bingo led to runs with the aid of Cardinal mental mistakes.

Boucher and Zappala produced five strikeouts between them, all in clutch situations.

Adam Brown threw a superlative game for the Cardinals, but would have had to strike out each Pirate to avoid the loss. The one batting highlight proved to be Adam Galaburda's first major league hit.

13-Year-Old League Wrapup

Yankees 11 - Angels 4

Strong pitching from Kurt Solomon and Curt Brucato highlighted the Yankees' 11-4 victory over the Angels. Eddie Chaison, Eric Horton, Kurt Solomon and Steve Liaw supplied the Yankee offense. The Angels received fine pitching from Bret Hammond and good offense from Alan Hanley, Pat Hayes, Bret Hammond and Dave Bakulski.

Tigers 10 - Angels 5

A single to center field by Mike Lebeck started the exciting action in the game between the Tigers and Angels. Ten Tiger runs were scored off hits by Keith Abernathy, George Bilger, David Hughes and a double by Jason Proctor. Angels scored five runs on hits by Pat Hayes, Todd Roycroft, Alan Hanley, Dave Fromson and Dave Bakulski. Jason Proctor turned in excellent pitching for the Tigers. He was relieved by Mike Lebeck. Hayes and Matt Adams provided the pitching for the Angels.

Braves 10 - White Sox 7

The Braves won their season opener at the expense of the White Sox 10-7. They scored twice in the first inning on a two-run single by Todd Mustera (3-for-4 on the night), two unearned runs in the second inning and four additional runs in the fourth. They rounded out their scoring with two insurance runs in the sixth inning on a timely hit by Jon Elliott. Dave Blank and Stan Gill stood out defensively.

The Sox pushed across four runs on one hit (a single by Jon Lane) in the first inning. They scored two runs on a single by Brian Rittershaus in the second inning, but they left the bases loaded in the second and third innings without scoring. The Sox pushed across their final run in the fourth inning. Dave Tucker led the hitting with three hits, including a triple. Joe Iarribino made a couple of fine defensive plays. Paul Lembo went the distance, striking out six, including the side in order in the fifth inning.

Dave Blank went the distance for the winners, striking out eight.

Yankees 15 - White Sox 8

Relief pitching by Curt Solomon highlighted a loosely played Yankees 15-8 win over the White Sox. Kurt Brucato's triple and two hits by Steve Liaw provided the Yankees' offense. Joe Iarribino, Dave Tucker, Brian Rittershaus, Mike Tiberi and Brian Davies provided hits for the White Sox.

Braves 10 - Giants 1

Todd Mustera showed exceptional form by pitching a four-hitter in leading the Braves to a 10-1 win over the Giants. Albie Minichiello and Steve Molineaux starred defensively with eight assists and three outs. Dave Blank provided the long-ball power accounting for four RBIs. Additional offense was provided by Mustera, Minichiello, Sean Gill, Kevin Friel, Jeff Conley and Mike Cowhig. Giants' offense star was Chris Lane with help from David Carriere, Mike Forlizzi and Jodi Imbriglio.

White Sox 5 - Twins 11

During the early innings, the Twins and White Sox fought a close battle. Starters John Melillo (White Sox) and Mark McKenna (Twins) spread the hits out and limited the scoring. A key single by Brad Cronin gave the White Sox a 4-3 edge at the end of three innings.

A bases-loaded double by McKenna in the fourth led the way to a three-run Twins' lead. Will Lowry delivered a double with two on to secure the advantage in the fifth.

Brendan Sharkey, Twins reliever, held the White Sox to one hit and one run over three innings.

Melillo and Cronin (White Sox) and McKenna and Lowry (Twins) were outstanding performers.

Yankees 10 - 7

The Yankees won their first game of the young season behind the seven-hit pitching of winner Jason Twombly with relief help from Mike Pettoruto.

With a 2-1 Oriole lead in the third inning, the Yankees scored four times with Kevin Murphy and Jeff Foley contributing key base hits. The Orioles countered with two when Ron Rygwalski walked. John Bowman singled, scoring Rygwalski, and Kevin Lewis' double rescued Bowman.

Twombly aided his own cause in the fourth with a double. Rod Malitsky and Foley base hits resulted in three runs. The Orioles battled back with three of their own as Mike D'Angelo's single was the major hit surrounding a series of base on balls.

The Yankees added two runs in the sixth to preserve the win.

Highlights included Twombly's debut victory, Foley's three base hits and Pettoruto's sharp double on the Yankee side. The Orioles' bright spots were D'Angelo's three safeties, the fine catch by Bowman of a towering fly ball in left and Lewis' excellent work behind the plate.

Ten-year-old rookies Malitsky (Yankees) and Bowman (Orioles) each had their first major league hit.

Indians 14 - Orioles 6

The Indians picked up two runs to start the first inning. The Orioles came flying back with six runs in the second. From there the Indian hitters took over to post the 14-6 win.

Bryan Smith and Mike Daley led the Indians with four hits each. Smith hit a towering two-run homer and Daley had four RBIs. Other Indian hitters were Mark Hopkinson (3 hits, 1 RBI), Chris Pothier (2 hits, 2 RBIs), Ken Leng (1 hit, 1 RBI), Mike Zetlin (1 hit, 1 RBI), Ben Howard (1 hit, 2 RBIs), Tom Torrisi (2 hits) and Matt Reghitto (1 hit). Peter Arthur led the Orioles with two hits. Mike D'Angelo and Paul Durant had single safeties. Sean Garrity played well defensively. Chethan Harish pitched well for the Orioles and the Indians' Ben Howard struck out all six batters he faced.

Boy Scouts Observe Anniversary

The North Essex Council held a day-long scouting event Saturday, May 4, in celebration of the 75th anniversary of Boy Scouting in America. Local Boy Scout and Cub Scout units shared their scouting skills and activities with the public at Merrimack College's Volpe Center.

On Saturday morning a "Celebrity for Scouts" walk from Phillips Academy to the Volpe Center was paced off by a group of area adults, led by several Eagle Scouts, to show their support of the scouting program.

During this 75th anniversary year, numerous special events are being planned in celebration of the Boy Scouts of America. The North Essex Council will have a Jubilee Camporee at Camp Onway May 31-June 2. The National Jamboree at Fort A.P. Hill, Virginia, will unite 30,000 scouts at a country-wide celebration in July. Twelve eastern Massachusetts councils, with 10,000 scouts joining for a weekend of camping, sharing and celebrating in the spirit of scouting, will attend a Mass-Jam October 12-14.

Problems Plague J.V. Club

By Dan Grams

The Andover High School junior varsity baseball team continued to have problems last week. The junior Warriors, who opened the season on a tear, taking their first four games with impressive victories, dropped a pair of close contests to stretch their losing streak to four before breaking into the win column again with a 11-9 victory over Dracut on Saturday.

The Golden Warriors, whose record now stands at 5-4, seem to have all the breaks going against them as they try to turn things around. The junior Warriors boast a team batting average of .281 while Golden Warrior hurlers have a combined ERA of 3.11.

Mike Klinger leads all Golden Warrior hitters with a .353 batting average, while Cam Deery (.333) and Mark Tucker (.303) are the other top Andover hitters.

Wilmington 7 - Andover 2

Andover ace Mark Hashem allowed but two hits while fanning four and walking two and Andover offense ripped Wildcat pitching for nine hits. Unfortunately, the Golden Warrior defense was not to be found as Andover committed seven errors which lead to Wilmington's unearned runs.

The Warriors opened the scoring in the third when Mike Klinger led off with a triple and scored on Mark Tucker's RBI single. A second run was added when Cam Deery scored after consecutive singles by Chris Sappupo and Bob Pothier. Unfortunately, that would be all the scoring Andover would do for the day, as the flood gates opened with Wilmington pushing two runs across in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings on only two safeties.

Righthander Mark Hashem breezed through the first three stanza's retiring the first 10 of 11 Wildcat hitters. Wilmington picked up a scratch run in the fourth without the benefit of a hit before the Golden Warrior defense collapsed to the tune of seven errors.

Andover collected eight hits while leaving eight men on base.

Klinger and Deery had a pair of hits while Mark Tucker, Sappupo, Pothier and Gerry Nassif had the other Warrior hits.

Tewksbury 3 - Andover 2

Andover continued to struggle, leaving ten men on base, as Tewksbury pushed across the decisive run in the bottom of the seventh and upset Andover 3-2. The loss over shadowed a superb two performance by lefty Mike Klinger.

Klinger, who turned in his second straight pitching gem, twirled a nifty four-hitter, while unloading a towering homer for Andover offensively.

Andover opened the game with a bang as Klinger greeted Redmen hurler with a bomb to straight away centerfield giving Andover a 1-0 lead. Mark Tucker and Cam Deery followed with hot shots, but Tewksbury flagged them down. Chris Sappupo collected a single to left before Peter Quintal launched a long drive over the fence which hooked just foul.

Andover's bats went silent, leaving six runners stranded. Tewksbury jumped to a 2-1 lead in the fourth before Andover knotted the score at two in the sixth.

Quintal, pinch hitters Jeff Kittleson and Mark Hashem all drew two-out walks. Jeff McNeil then lined an off-field safety to tie the score. Andover left the bases loaded in the sixth and again in the seventh before Tewksbury pulled the game out.

A single, error and walk left the bases jammed with no out. Klinger induced the next hitter to pop up, but allowed a lopping single to Mader over the drawn in infield to give Tewksbury the victory.

Tucker had two hits, Klinger a home run and Deery (double) Sappupo and McNeil had the other hits.

Sappupo was sensational at his first start at shortstop, making three nice stabs on balls ticketed for the outfield. Peter Quintal also stood out, gunning a Redmen runner down trying to score from his centerfield position.

Andover 11 - Dracut 9

Andover rallied for a four-run deficit in the fifth inning to overcome Dracut 11-9.

Peter Quintal enjoyed a big day, going 4-for-4 with a booming double to pace an 11-hit Golden Warrior attack in which eight Golden Warriors joined this hit parade.

The Asteroids caught the Galaxies off guard in the first minute of play with a goal by Andrew Novelline, assisted by Phil Bellizia. The Galaxies' second quarter goalie, Goerge Loukatos, blocked several good attempts, but the Asteroids were able to score (Ted Ratuna assisted by Andy Cohen). BOW: Chris Park, Cliff Weiss and Tim Maracle (Steroids) and Adam Pedicino and Adam Winship (Galaxies).

The frustrated Meteors battled for a goal in the fourth quarter and succeeded when Scott Halecki booted one past the determined goalie in a play assisted by Paul Lisiak. BOW: Nat Lopes, Jonathan Hess, Matt Doyle and Mark Baker (Meteors) and Patrick Stone and Todd Green (Novas).

The Earthquakes scored in the second quarter (Jennifer Wu, assisted by Poisson) and early in the third (Brenda Petzold off a pass by Elizabeth Smith). Connor (Monsoons) then booted in a goal off a pass by Shannon Leary. Stephanie Kip scored for the earthquakes in the fourth quarter and scored again off a penalty kick in the final seconds. BOW: Danyelle Constantineau.

Cyclones 2 - Tidal Waves 0

BOW: Larisa Willey and Lisabet Pardo (Cyclones) and Kenney and Mandy Gulezian (Tidal Waves).

Typhoons 4 - Hurricanes 0

The second goal came unassisted by Michelle Doucette in the second quarter. Sweeney scored in the third off a pass by Heather Norton and Dugal ended the scoring in the fourth quarter. BOW: Maura Collins and Becky Crispo (Typhoons).

THE MASTER SUITE BATH

Builders, architects and designers have found that the incorporation of a tasteful bedroom-bathroom suite is a key factor in attracting buyers to a new home. This is especially true when the price of the home is $100,000 or more. It particularly applies when the buyer has already owned a "tract" home with a cramped, minimum three-fixture bathroom that has caused problems morning after morning for three years. Today's master suite may be viewed as a private living area for the "master" and "mistress" of the home. It is often equipped with an easy chair, stereo and T.V. The key to design of the bath area is one's personal preference for luxury bath fixtures.

Marta Hornidge

al Chitwan national park, where they rode elephants, searched for rhinoceroses, and lived in the jungle for two days (in a luxury hotel).

The trip ended with a week's stay in dusty Kathmandu; after a few days, Mrs. Hornidge found herself "coughing from the dust and beginning to wish I were at home."

Getting home was a bit harder than she had expected. Prime Minister Indira Gandhi was assassinated while Marta was in the region, and the rioting that erupted across India delayed the traveler's return and left her unable to communicate with her husband back in the States.

The Hornidges' three-week Egyptian visit was more relaxed. Traveling with four friends, they cruised slowly down the Nile in a felucca (an "old sailboat"), watching "camels and schoolchildren near the banks."

"Then we'd stop and see all kinds of things. I rode on the back of a donkey that went charging off into the sugar cane. Those are the kinds of experiences you would never, never have otherwise."

While in the Nile valley, which was "wonderful and extremely beautiful," Mrs. Hornidge and her party visited temples, the site of "unbelievable" archaeological digs, and Cairo — which she calls "the pits. It was very dusty and far overcrowded."

After Cairo, the city of Jerusalem seemed "like heaven. It was clean, and we could drink the water and eat strawberries off the street."

Marta cherishes the "unexpected quality" that each of her trips "always produces. Some parts are not always pleasant, such as the second-class hotels in Egypt, but those things you have to just roll along with. You don't want it all smooth. I've loved every one of my trips."

She would like to return to the Swiss Alps, where she indulged in eight-hour days of "arduous" hiking, and to the Himalayas, where she'd like to climb as high as the base camps of Mount Everest. "Altitude bothers me, but I'm getting better — you can improve."

Still, she does not make it a habit to return to the same places: "I don't like to repeat — there's so much in the world to see. And every year, as I get older, I think maybe I'd better go more often!" She is already planning to tour China next year — by bicycle.

Her energy and enthusiasm may awe non-hikers, but Marta insists that it shouldn't. "I hike strenuously — I've grown into a strenuous hiker — and people think I'm a bit of a phenomenon, but I'm not."

"On my Swiss trip, a man of sixty-eight led the group every day, and he became my idol. I've watched many hikers better than I am. I like to extend myself as much as I can, probably too much sometimes — although I'm in good shape, I'm not twenty-one."

"And," she concludes firmly, "there's nothing wrong with a little physical exercise to make you feel good."

Marta Hornidge has other pleasures: She loves ballet and music (she sings with the North Parrish choral group), and sails with her husband. She is taking writing courses now to help her write an account of her Galapagos experiences.

But hiking and travel are her passion, a way of life that at times seems "selfish" because, she says, "I'm pleasing myself. I love it very much."

"I don't climb a mountain because it's there, the way some people say they do. I climb it because I'm there."

Administrator Pact Ratified

There were handshakes all around on Tuesday as the School Committee ratified a contract with the school administrators union after almost a year of negotiations.

Under the terms of the new two-year agreement the Teamsters Local 380 members, composed of 17 administrators in Andover's public schools, will receive a 6 percent pay raise in this first year of the document and 7 percent next year. The contract is retroactive to July 1, 1984, when the administrators' last contract ran out.

They will also receive salary adjustments in cases where workload has been changed due to a redistribution of duties and the administrators agreed to accept an early retirement package giving those with 15 years of service or more the option to retire and receive $5,000. The contract also, for the first time, includes reduction in force language based on an evaluation process.

Now, with the administrators' agreement finished, the committee has heard that the Andover Schools Food Service Association, which employs 51 cafeteria workers in Andover, wants to begin discussion for a new contract. Their agreement runs out on June 30, said Business Manager Francis L. Paul.

Limousine Service Approved

A new limousine service from this area to Logan Airport in Boston was among the licenses and permits approved by the Board of Selectmen Monday night during a regular meeting at town offices on Bartlet Street.

George and Ruth Sweeney of Andover were granted a license to run a door-to-door limousine service, INEX Limo Service, to bring passengers to the airport. They will garage their limos at 22 Cabot Road in Lawrence.

Administrators are pleased with their contract and voted unanimously to accept the document, said West Elementary Principal John A. Coyle.

"Both sides are happy," Coyle told THE TOWNSMAN.

The negotiations took so long, Coyle explained, because for much of the summer the committee's negotiator Naomi Stonberg and the administrator's representative Luke Cramer, the Teamsters executive officer, could not meet to discuss proposals.

Stonberg is employed by Holland, Crowe and Drachman, the Boston law firm the committee has retained to work on labor negotiations.

The School Committee referred the start-up of talks with the Food Service union to Stonberg on Tuesday night.

The administrators may re-open their negotiations for a contract to follow this two-year agreement in October, said Coyle.

The Public Forum

I admire and respect the teaching profession; I am part of that work force. I came to Andover in order to offer my child a first-rate public education. I hope that the school committee and the school system administrators can work together—as an interactive system of checks and balances—to provide the best possible educational experience for the children of Andover. If this program requires developmental primaries, so be it; however, careful evaluation must be implemented concurrent to the program so that its effects can be determined. Any change, regardless of how promising it appears by fiat, offers the opportunity for educational regression and adverse consequence. There is no situation so bad that we cannot make it worse.

Down The Years

much easier it is to get to Route 128 and beyond. And when the road is officially open, thousands will suddenly become aware of Andover, as they drive through here. Thus Andover may be in for a period of healthy growth and development. This can only continue, for even as Route 93 nears completion, work is only starting on the new Route 110, which intersects Route 93 in West Andover.

Jerome W. Cross confirmed this week that he has agreed to purchase the Andover Book Store, which will remain in its present location in the Andover Press building at the corner of Main and Chestnut sts. The office of the Cross Coal Co., at the other end of Main st. in the square, will be moved to the Book Store. It was announced last week that Smart and Flagg have agreed to purchase the Press building.

10 Years Ago — May 1975

Owners of a Lawrence food market, Barcelos Brothers, are on the verge of reaching agreement to purchase the Andover Co-Op. The pending agreement means that the Co-Op will continue as an Andover food market, after its threatened closing due to declining revenue as reported at the annual meeting last month.

IT TAKES ONE TO KNOW ONE.

Our Volvo technicians have certain advantages over the mechanic who works someplace else.

First, many are factory-trained to service Volvos. This higher education is available to all Volvo dealer employees.

Second, our technicians are the first to know about new service procedures. And changes in older procedures.

Third, when new tools are designed to service Volvos faster and better, they're put in our technicians' hands first.

Does all this mean the non-Volvo mechanic is working at a slight disadvantage?

No. It means he's working at a huge disadvantage.

Moira Reed and Susan Poore of The Country Gourmet

The Country Gourmet Branches Out

You can't have too much of some good things—like The Country Gourmet at 85 Essex St. in Andover, the home of elegant gourmet foods, whimsical gifts and a professional soup-to-nuts catering service. That's why co-owners Susan Poore and Moira Reed are so excited—they're planning the details of their big move to 311 Merrimack St., South Lawrence, where their expanded business will include a restaurant which will seat up to 50 people.

Reed and Poore expect to be in the S. Lawrence location by Labor Day. The site, across from the proposed Merrimack River Walk development, is the former home of the well-known Messina's Restaurant and Catering.

"We will be expanding to incorporate all aspects of the fine food business," explains Reed. "We'll still have our retail and catering, both private and corporate, and we'll have an eat-in capacity—something many of our customers have requested."

"One exciting facet of the new kitchen," adds Poore, "is that it will enable us to bring in guest chefs for culinary arts workshops and demonstrations." The restaurant will feature the same high-quality gourmet fare now found at The Country Gourmet on a take-out basis—all the homemade soups and hor d'oeuvres, salads, pates, sandwiches and sinfully rich desserts. Their new location will allow its owners to present even more of their savory and baked specialties. "People can come in for a lunch," says Poore, "or just stop by for an espresso or cappuccino and a delightful dessert."

The Country Gourmet will not abandon those who prefer home entertainment; it will still provide its complete and tasteful array of party fare for all occasions—right down to the butler, if desired. And it will continue to offer catered executive breakfasts, working luncheons and other business-related needs.

If it features the finest in food and service, you can find it at the Country Gourmet—open Mon-Sat 9-5. Phone: 475-8292. And remember: for even more of a good thing, watch for the notice of The Country Gourmet's big move.

J.B. Doherty Realtors, Inc.: Hassle-Free Relocation

Moving, claims every current "stress index", ranks with divorce, job change and death in the family as one of life's most stressful experiences. J.B. Doherty Realtors, Inc. understands the trauma of pulling up roots and resettling; easing the moving hassle is their business.

J.B. Doherty Realtors is a member of RELO, the world's largest not-for-profit real estate referral organization. RELO is not a club or a franchise; to join, a realtor must be approved for membership by his peers and must maintain productivity standards in the face of a yearly review. J.B. Doherty ranks consistently among the top 20 RELO agencies of its size in the country for sending out and placing referrals.

A referral, simply put, is a person who comes to RELO because he is moving, and he needs a connection in his new location. Through RELO's nation-wide network of agents, he can receive free information about the area to which he is moving—the town's make-up, physical structure, school system, and so forth. Also through RELO, he can be put in touch with a real estate agent in his new area. In short, RELO tackles one of moving's worst nightmares—unfamiliarity.

RELO is only part of the J.B. Doherty success story in Andover. Owners Joe and Chris Doherty, who have lived in this area all their lives, bring more than 12 years experience each to their company. Their standards for their profession and their sales personnel are high; all Doherty members maintain a peak level of education and training to keep on top of the current complicated real estate market.

In addition, Joseph B. Doherty, Sr., past president of the National Association of Realtors and current executive board member, lends his expertise to the J.B. Doherty operation by acting as consultant to his sons' agency. J.B. Doherty Realtors, Inc., 9 Bartlett St., Andover, is open 7 days a week and can be reached 24 hours a day at 475-5970.

Bel-Air Upholstering Sets Some Good Examples

When was the last time you checked out a Swag and Jabots? How about a Roman Shade? Take a look around — see any balloon shades? Or a single, or double, continental rods?

If you think that all windows should be treated equally, you need a trip to Bel Air Upholstery's new sample room. You'll find it right before the workroom, at the top of the stairs at 195 Andover Street in Ballardvale. Its curtain samples are a real eye-opener for anyone considering new window treatments for her home.

In addition to drapery styles, the room also features book after book of furniture and drapery fabric samples—from herculons and tough blends to natural fabrics, such as bright preshrunk cotton prints and chintz in every color of the spectrum. One of them is yours—the fabric meant to transform your old couch or chair into a focal point for any room, formal or casual.

Regie Purdy can carry that transformation from the page to your furniture. With her husband Frank, she has operated Bel Air Upholstery for more than 13 years in the Andover area. She works her magic on antiques—matching the fabric to the era—or on modern pieces, and she is especially adept at coordinating upholstery with window treatment. Do you balk at drastic upholstery work? Mrs. Purdy can fit your furniture for custom-made slipcovers. Whatever the project, you can't beat Bel Air for quality workmanship born of experience.

Bel Air Upholstery offers free estimates and will pick up and deliver free of charge. Call 470-0388 for information, or stop by to browse through the fabrics in Mrs. Purdy's sample room—and pick up some great new ideas to bring a fresh Spring look to your windows.

COMPETING AGAINST NEW HOMES

If you are considering selling your older home but are worried about competition from new homes, here's something to think about.

Generally speaking, whether buyers choose to look at new or resale homes, there are tradeoffs in both directions. Older homes usually offer more living space for the dollar and are sometimes built on larger lots. Because developable land was more plentiful in earlier years, builders also had a greater choice of where to build. Therefore, the location of a resale home may be more desirable. Also, there is no guesswork in action. Landscaping has matured, neighborhoods have formed and a buyer doesn't have to be concerned about how the area will develop. It already has.

On the other side, new homes may be more energy-efficient and require less repair and maintenance.

How does your older home stack up against new home offerings? Your best bet would be to have an experienced residential agent provide you with a current estimate of its market value.

KEEPING UP

Just a few years ago, adjustable rate mortgages were a new phenomenon. Today they represent 36 percent of all first mortgages in existence in the U.S. Lenders met a need with a new product, and both the real estate industry and buyers found its advantages.

The real estate business is constantly changing. New laws, tax rulings, and developments in the money market - not to mention new building ideas and new demands from buyers - all must be followed. It's a full-time job for real estate professionals to keep up with it all. No homeowner has the time.

You can't sell today's customer by yesterday's rules. We make it our business to keep up. It IS our business to show, negotiate, sell, get the best price for our clients. We take over all the marketing details and move the transaction to fruition. We know how - so you don't have to.

Towne Deli To Change To Family-Style Restaurant

The Towne Deli at 209 North Main St., Shawsheen Plaza, will close its doors next fall, to be replaced by a new family-style restaurant called Jimmy's Steer House.

The Board of Selectmen Monday night voted unanimously to grant an all-alcoholic restaurant beverage license for the new restaurant to James and Mark Miminose of Winchester, under the corporate name Old Andover Restaurant, Inc.

The Miminoses currently operate three similar restaurants, including Jimmy's On The Mall at Burlington Mall.

The new restaurant will seat 160 and will feature a "family-style" dining room, according to Andover Atty. Howard Berger, representing Towne Deli owner Phedias Dantos.

The Deli seats 150, including 30 seats on an outdoor patio, and has a license to serve wine and beer only.

The new owners plan to remodel the restaurant and hope to open Jimmy's

Steer House in October. The restaurant will open at 11:30 a.m. and will remain open until at least 10:30 p.m. and possibly later, they indicated.

Selectman Gerald Silverman said he was concerned about increasing traffic in Shawsheen Plaza, particularly on Thursday and Friday nights, when "traffic in there is horrendous."

But other board members said they anticipated no serious impact on traffic at the shopping center — noting that diners may linger longer at Jimmy's than at the Deli, so that the amount of traffic generated by the restaurant may, in fact, decrease.

Beth Deacon Chosen Speaker

Her speech at this year's high school graduation ceremony will be a dream come true for Andover High School senior Beth Deacon, 18, who won the annual speech competition and will address the class of 1985 on June 3.

Her speech is based on this year's theme, "a tear and a smile." Deacon's first place in the annual Goldsmith speaking contest was announced last Friday, May 3, at the high school following competition at the school the previous afternoon.

A Poor Street resident, Deacon is the daughter of Betty and Robert Deacon. She plans to enter Gordon College, in Wenham, this September, and has received a scholarship from the college.

A future psychology major, Deacon has been active in the high school's Peer Counseling Center, the drama club and performs with the Madrigal Singers. She also holds two part-time jobs.

"It has been my high school dream for three years," Deacon said of her achievement, adding that each year she saves copies of the annual commencement speeches from THE TOWNSMAN and had been waiting for the announcement of this year's topic so she could start writing.

This year only one member of the graduating class will address her classmates, a decision of a graduation committee composed of students, faculty members, administrators and parents.

A lot of work has gone into planning the commencement by the committee, said senior class advisor Robert King.

"The administration has bent over backwards to say to the kids 'what do you want and how can we achieve it,'" King explained.
